STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The need for the setting up of a Coast Guard organisation for the purpose of ensuring the safety of navigation in our waters, protection of our off-shore installations and fishing interests, organising salvage and pollution control measures and enforcement of national laws in our maritime zones, including assistance to customs authorities in anti-smuggling operations, has, for some time, been acutely felt as the development of these services has not kept pace with the substantial increase in the number of activities in our maritime zones. To meet this demand, an interim Coast Guard consisting of a few vessels was formed in early 1977 as part of the Indian Navy for exclusive deployment on the abovementioned services. However, considering the nature of the Force and the purposes for which it would be employed, it is now considered appropriate that the Coast Guard be constituted as a separate armed force of the Union under a Director-General and should be regulated under a separate self-contained statute which will provide for its special needs, especially the needs of efficiency and discipline. The present Bill seeks to achieve this object.

- 2. As the Coast Guard is charged with the protection of maritime and other national interests in the maritime and coastal regions of India, the Bill seeks to ensure that the standards of efficiency and discipline of the Force are of a very high order.
- 3. The notes on clauses explain in brief the various provisions of the Bill.

JAGJIVAN RAM.

New Delhi; The 14th July, 1978.

Notes on Clauses

Clause 2—This clause defines the various expressions commonly used in the Bill.

Sub-clause (m) of this clause defines the expression "maritime zones of India" to mean the territorial waters, the contiguous zone, the continental shelf, the exclusive economic zone or any other maritime zone of India. Sub-clause (y) defines the above expressions to have the same meanings as in the Territorial Waters. Continental Shelf, Exclusive Economic Zone and Other Maritime Zones Act, 1976.

Sub-clause (u) defines the expression "ship" to include a shore establishment of the Coast Guard also.

The definitions of "civil offence", "civil prison", "criminal court" and "offence" are based upon the definitions of those expressions in the Border Security Force Act, 1968.

Clause 3.—This clause specifies the persons subject to the proposed legislation. The legislation applies not only to the members of the Coast Guard but also to persons who have been required to serve in a ship of the Coast Guard by a general or special order of the Central Government, persons who have been ordered to be received on board any ship or aircraft of the Coast Guard and to passengers on such ship or aircraft.

Clause 4.—This clause provides for the constitution of the Coast Guard.

Clause 5.—This clause provides for the general superintendence, direction and control of the Coast Guard and appointment of officers of the Coast Guard.

Clause 6.—This clause deals with enrolment of persons to the Coast Guard.

Clause 7.—This clause provides for liability of members of the Coast Guard for service in any part of India as well as outside India.

Clause 8.—This clause makes it obligatory for the members of the Coast Guard to make and subscribe to an oath or affirmation after their appointment or enrolment to the Coast Guard.

Clauses 9 to 12.—These clauses deal with tenure of service, etc., of members of the Coast Guard.

Clause 13.—This clause seeks to impose certain restrictions on the rights of members of the Coast Guard to form associations, and on their freedom of speech. This clause is similar to section 3 of the Police Forces (Restriction of Rights) Act, 1966 and section 13 of the Border Security Force Act, 1968.

Clause 14.—This clause deals with the duties and functions of the Coast Guard. The functions would include, among other things, the taking of measures to ensure the safety and protection of artificial islands, off-shore terminals, installations and other structures and devices in any maritime zone and for enforcing the provisions of any enactment for the time being in force in the maritime zones. As many of the measures proposed to be undertaken by the Coast Guard are now being looked after by other Union agencies and authorities, it has been provided that the Coast Guard will work in close liaison with those agencies and authorities so as to avoid any duplication of effort.

Clauses 15 to 48.—These clauses seek to penalise the commission by the members of the Coast Guard of the various acts which would be prejudicial to the maintenance of discipline, good order and efficiency of the Coast Guard. These clauses follow, subject to certain necessary modifications, the provisions relating to offences contained in section 34 to 80 of the Navy Act, 1957 and sections 14 to 45 of the Border Security Force Act. 1968.

Clauses 49 and 50.—In order that the authorities of the Coast Guard may have effective control over the persons subject to the proposed legislation, clause 49 seeks to make it an offence thereunder for such person to commit a 'civil offence', that is to say, an offence triable by courts of ordinary criminal justice, but civil offences of murder, culpable homicide not amounting to murder and rape committed by a person subject to the proposed legislation against a person not so subject are not triable under the proposed legislation except under certain circumstances. These clauses which are modelled on sections 46 and 47 of the Border Security Force Act. 1968, have to be read with clauses 68, 71 and 72.

Clause 51.—This clause provides for a period of limitation for trial of offences under the proposed legislation. It provides that a trial for the commission of every offence under the legislation except the offences of desertion, giving false entry on enrolment and mutiny shall be commenced within three years of the commission of such offence.

Clause 52.—This clause provides for the taking into custody, trial and punjshment of a person who has ceased to be subject to the proposed legislation for an offence committed by him while he was so subject if the trial commences within six months after he ceases to be subject to this Act. This period of limitation will not, however, apply to the trial of any such person for an offence of mutiny or desertion.

Clause 53.—This clause sets out the various punishment which may be awarded by Coast Board Courts.

Clause 54.—This clause enables a Coast Guard Court to take into account the nature and degree of the offence committed and award to the accused person convicted .or any effence under clauses 15 to 48, the punishment prescribed by the relevant clause or a punishment lower in the scale within the meaning of clause 53.

Clause 4 of the Bill provides for the constitution of the Coast Guard as an armed force of the Union. Clause 5 provides for the appointment of certain officers, in the Coast Guard. Clause 63(1) deals with the appointment of Provost officers of the Coast Guard. Clause 115(1) deals with the appointment of Law Officers of the Coast Guard. The Coast Guard proposed to be constituted under the provisions of the Bill will require the acquisition of ships, aircraft and other equipment for the performance of its functions envisaged by or under the provisions of the Bill. A number of Coast Guard stations will also be established along the coast of India. It is estimated that the expenditure involved in the constitution of the Force, appointment of officers thereto, purchase of equipment, etc., will involve a non-recurring expenditure of Rs. 65 crores and a recurring expenditure of Rs. 7 crores per annum on an average. It is, however, proposed to incur the non-recurring expenditure of Rs. 65 crores in a phased manner during the initial period of six years.

MEMORANDUM REGARDING DELEGATED LEGISLATION

Clause 123 of the Bill authorises the Central Government to make rules for carrying into effect the provisions of the proposed legislation.
